BIG DAY FOR RUM CHASERS

BERGER IN BIG LEAPS TO DEATH

Jack Berger, the killer in Boston's latest gang shooting, was one of the six hijackers allowed by police to escape when customs agents arrested 23 men, including "Big John" Magnus and seized an $85,000 run load in Dorchester last May. Berger has confessed he killed "Little Harry" Wolan and wounded Arthur Valenti last Thursday night when they took him "for a ride" because he was suspected of a hijacking that hurt "The Big Fellow". In connection with the big arrest and seizure last May there was no hijacking, police said, although Berger's man known as Max Schuster and four others were waiting to seize the load when the federal agents stepped in.

Police said they did not believe this was the incident Berger referred to in his story that he was "on the spot" for a hijacking. At the time of the seizure, Berger and Schuster and the others were sitting in a New York car while the run was being unloaded at the foot of Victory rd. The customs men had laid their trap and were also waiting when Patrolman Carl D. Miner of the Fields Corner station, who knew nothing about the landing, walked up to the hijacker's auto. He demanded to know who the occupants were and they told him they were prohibition agents. Federal men arrived and held up the hijackers, who handed over their cargo.

Senate Sub-Committee O. K.'s Direct Relief Opposed by Hoover and Gifford

Washington, Jan. 18 (AP)—The Costigan-LaFollette bill to authorize a federal appropriation of $375,000,000 for unemployment relief was approved today by a committee of Senators.

The group will report to the full manufacturers committee, which must report on the proposed legislation before it can be sent to the Senate for action.

An immediate appropriation of $375,000,000 would be authorized for the winter and the remainder would be appropriated for the next fiscal year beginning July 1.

GOES TO COMMITTEE

The bill, which would authorize direct federal participation in unemployment relief, to which President Hoover is opposed, was taken up at a meeting of the full committee a few minutes later.

An immediate appropriation of $375,000,000 would be authorized for the winter and the remainder would be appropriated for the next fiscal year beginning July 1.

LABOR FAVORS BILLS

Funds provided would be allocated to the states on the basis of population, amounts they themselves spent for relief, and their needs as judged by a federal emergency relief board.

The chief of the children's bureau of the labor department would administer the act under the best supervision.

Preparing to bind and gag the men, the woman complied with Mrs. Myers' request not to tie her up because of her approaching menses.

Mr. Hoover's Plan for Financing the Financiers

MR. HOOVER, who had been President for nearly three years and who in all that time had done nothing practical to relieve the depression, urged the Democratic House, when it had been in operation only three weeks, to HURRY in adopting relief measures.

The Democratic House, under the able leadership of Speaker Garner, promptly responded. It pledged itself not to play partisan politics with emergency relief proposals, and by a vote of 335 to 55 the House has rushed through one of the most important and far reaching measures that will receive consideration at the present session of Congress.

THIS is the reconstruction finance corporation bill, recommended by the Republican administration, the purpose of which is "to provide emergency financing facilities for financial institutions."

It creates a "reconstruction finance corporation" with a capital stock of $500,000,000 to be subscribed by the treasury of the United States.

The management of this corporation will be vested in a board of directors of seven members, including the Secretary of the Treasury, the Secretary of Agriculture, and the Governor of the Federal Reserve Board.

AUTHORITY is granted to sell bonds totaling $1,500,000,000, and from the proceeds make loans to banks, trust companies, building and loan associations, insurance companies, intermediate credit banks, agricultural credit corporations, livestock credit corporations, and farmers' associations.

Upon the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission, properly secured loans may also be made to railroads and railways.

But the House bill specifically prohibits any loans or advances by this emergency corporation upon foreign securities and foreign acceptances, "or for the purpose of assisting in carrying or liquidating foreign securities or acceptances."

IT is true that this measure represents, as Chairman Steagall of the House committee on banking and currency says: "A departure from the principles and policies to which we have adhered through the years."

It is true that neither the committee on banking and currency nor the House itself has had the time to study and debate this measure as thoroughly as its importance would seem to warrant.

But this is an emergency measure, belatedly drafted, hastily considered, inadequately debated, and rushed to a vote in an effort to restore confidence, re-enforce credit, and rehabilitate the economic life of the nation.

IT IS AN ADMINISTRATION MEASURE TO FINANCE THE FINANCIERS.

It is a measure characteristic of the Republican government of bankers by bankers and for bankers, to relieve the bankers who have for the most part, in this time of national emergency, proved themselves either reckless speculators or penny-pinching pawnbrokers.

SPEAKER GARNER

and the Democratic House, whose patriotic attitude in this emergency is responsible for the prompt passage of the reconstruction finance corporation bill in the House, believe that the new Congress should have been called in

SHOTS FLY A JACK BATTLE IN COHASSET

Rival Mobs Clash as Liquor Is Landed; $150,000 Worth Seized in 3 Captures

A running gun battle between 20 hi-jackers and rum runners, and the seizure of 400 sacks of liquor in Cohasset climaxed a series of rum captures today that cost double-crossed mobs a total of $150,000 in liquor and boats.

Only a few hours earlier the speedboat, Mary had run aground and was captured in Dorchester Bay after a thrilling two-mile chase.

A bribe of $5000 was offered a coast guard for return of the Mary's cargo.

The Mary, registered to "John Brown of Dorchester," was released from bond only a week ago, and was believed to be on her first trip since she was captured in York River, Me., several months ago.

At that time she was registered to Herman Rich of Newburyport. Rich, Fred Woodward, former coast guardman, and Woodward's brother Arthur were arrested at that time.

The third seizure was made in Boston harbor as the speedboat Eddie Cohasset attempted to run a coast guard blockade.

15-MINUTE GUN FIGHT

As near as police could determine eight hi-jackers attempted to land 2000 sacks of liquor from a down run-ner.

The battle lasted but 15 minutes, after which all the participants fled in trucks and automobiles which were parked in Border st. Scores of hi-jackers are believed to be in the city.

PEOPLE CALL DRY LAW "ASHBORES," SAYS REP. DYER

PEOPLE URGED BY MISSOURI

Solon Adds That Federal Judges are Now "Police Judges" Under Bootlegging

Washington, Jan. 18.—Resuming hearings on the Eighteenth Amendment, a Senate committee today heard Representative Dyer, Republican, Missouri, testify that States refused to enforce the dry law because the people regarded the definition of intoxicants as unscientific and dishonest.

As a result, Dyer said, federal judges have become "police judges" under bootlegging. He said that the limitation of criminal cases to cases involving the sale of alcoholic content, the Missouri law said, "never made any sense known to it neither scientific nor honest."

Testimony on prohibition legislation during his many years on the House Judiciary committee, Dyer said, showed the people would not enforce a law that was so unfair, calling in fact the bootlegging law.

He estimated fifty to sixty million bushels of grain would be used for the bootlegging of beer and wine.

Four billion gallons of beer are being illegally manufactured in the United States every year.

He added there were 220,000 speakeasies throughout the country.

Hoover is a "Sincere Dry," Says Anti-Saloon League

Washington, Jan. 18 (AP).—A declaration that "we have a convinced, sincere, dry man in the White House" brought delegates to the Anti-Saloon League's annual convention to their feet today with outbursts of cheering.

The Rev. John M. Phillips of Hartford, Ct., made the statement.

There is enough people in the United States to see that we are not having anything but a convinced and sincere dry man," Phillips added.

He assailed Senator Blinn, Republican, Connecticut, the author of a bill to legalize beer, and said:

"If anybody can make the side walk ridiculous, Senator Blinn, I think you are the best man in Connecticut that all some of the wild jackasses do not know. From Mississippi."

STORIES CANON 206. A DAY NET

Washington, Jan. 18 (INS).—Business failures have grown more and less steadily during the periods of prosperity as well as depression, according to Assistant Secretary of Commerce Julius Klein.

The present situation has not materially increased the number of failures although losses to creditors have been heavier in the last few years. The average loss in recent years prior to the slump has been $100,000 annually.

Although many of the victims blame the depression for their troubles, in almost every case the real cause of their inability to weather the storm was one or more serious shortcomings on the part of the victim, Klein said.

Klein disclosed that the average net profit of American retail grocers is 2 per cent. Twenty-seven per cent of the independent grocers have daily sales of $100.

In 1929 retail sales amounted to $2,000,000,000 and the net profit was $200,000,000.

20 MILLION DOLLARS THIS WEEK

Action Would Eliminate Long Delay in Conference Between Two Branches

Washington, Jan. 18 (US).—The $2,000,000,000 reconstruction finance corporation bill will be whipped into final shape by Congress and sent to President Hoover for signature before the end of the week. The measure must go to conference to iron out differences.

When a motion was made in the Senate to substitute the House bill for the Senate bill no conference could start without delay. Senator Burton (R) of Wisconsin, one of the eight Senators who voted against the measure, objected and action was postponed today.

APPROVAL EXPECTED

Senator Walcott (R) of Connecticut will renew the motion at the Senate's opening today. He anticipated quick approval. This action could be called before the end of the day.

Two big fighting points remain. The House provided the corporation be organized in the United States, while the Senate provided it be organized in the Federal Reserve Bank, and apportioned $200,000,000 to the Federal Reserve Bank, and apportioned $200,000,000 to the Federal Reserve Bank.

LABOR OPPOSES JUDGE

What may be a rival to the Senate's action resulting in a selection of President Hoover's appointment to the Supreme Court starts today when the Senate Judiciary committee hears reports on the nomination of Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson of Chicago to the seventh circuit court of appeals.

Organized labor, which has been hostile to Wilkerson since his issuance of the injunction during the 1922 shipmen's strike, will urge defeat of the nomination.

Modification has been three days, after which the committee reports until Jan. 26. Hearings on the $1,000,000,000 tax increase bill continue today before the House Ways and Means committee.

TOMB REVEALS

WAST RICHES IN MEXICO

Skeletons of the Ancient Chieftains Decked in Gold and Precious Jewels

By ARTHUR CONSTANTINE

Mexico City, Jan. 18.—Out of the tomb where they have laid for centuries archeologists have recovered the bejeweled, gold banded skeletons of ten ancient Mexican chieftains, whose burial place is yielding such treasures as mark it a monument of the most advanced civilization of all ancient America.

The skeletons are covered with carved gold bands, necklaces of pearls, jade and crystal that remained as their flesh turned to dust.

BURIED IN TREASURE

Alfonso Caso, head of the expedition that unearthed the tomb in southern Mexico, declares it is the tomb of the ten Zapotecan Chieftains (chieftains).

Expected to yield treasure of intricate and archeological value unparalleled since the finding of the sepulcher of the Egyptian Pharaoh, Tut-Ankhamun, the tomb is located in the ruins of a centuries-old city, Oaxaca, in the state of Oaxaca.

In his report of yesterday's finds, Caso states the skeletons found were gold and silver, necklaces of pearls, jade, pearls, and other precious stones, and curious ear bands of obsidian.

A heavy military guard was thrown around the tomb, carved out of solid rock by 15 feet, as workers stumbled into the light of the tomb, with gold and silver, necklaces, amulets, and chains of gold and silver, pearls and other precious stones, and curious ear bands of obsidian.

Editor's Note: Elsie Robinson, noted feature writer, whose column, "Listen, World," is known to millions of newspaper readers, is revisiting Washington after a long absence.

In the accompanying article she looks at Washington from the outside and sets down her impressions of it. They are interesting if not flattering.

By ELSIE ROBINSON
Washington, Jan. 18 (INS)—This place called Washington... why doesn't it seem real? Here it is—just like the postal cards. Big, white dome against a dark blue sky. Narrow, marble corridors. Smells like a church. Feels like ghosts. Staring statues that look alive. Staring people who look dead. Other people scuttling around importantly... listening significantly. Congressmen. Senators. Secretaries. Plenty going on—just as you expect. But why doesn't the performance click? Why do the words, the acts, of all these men and women seem like something in a dream?

LIFE AT STAKE IN TRIAL

Phoenix, Arizona, is buzzing as lawyers and friends of Mrs. Ruth Judd prepare for the murder trial which opens in that city tomorrow. Ruth will answer to the law for the killing of her two girl friends, Hedvig Samuelson and Mrs. Agnes Anne Lerol. (International Newsreel photo.)

TRUNK SLAYER MAY LINK MAN IN THE CASE

Fight for Life in the Murder of Two Girl Friends Opens in Arizona Tomorrow

San Francisco, Jan. 18 (AP)—Dr. Joseph Catton, San Francisco alienist, says that Winnie Ruth Judd threatens to "get up and tell everything if things don't go the way they are planned" at her trial for the slaying of her two girl friends, which starts tomorrow in Phoenix, Arizona.

Dr. Catton, who has twice examined Mrs. Judd, will act as chief state alienist.

He hinted broadly that a second person may be involved in the slaying of Mrs. Agnes Anne Lerol and Hedvig Samuelson.

READY TO 'TELL ALL.' "From all aspects of the case as I know them, almost anything may develop," Dr. Catton said.

"Mrs. Judd said to me: 'If things don't go the way they are planned, believe me, I'll get up and tell everything.'"

When Dr. Catton examined Mrs. Judd in the Phoenix jail he asked her, he said, if she had severed the bodies as they were found dimpled and puckered in trunk.

He said her reply was: "I have never in my life cut up a chicken, doctor."

"Mrs. Judd told me there had been no man in her life until Dr. Judd, her husband, came into it, and she believed Mrs. Judd was sane, and that her mental average is about normal for her age."

SAYS SHE IS SANE. The alienist also revealed Mrs. Judd told him she was the mother of a boy who is the "living image" of Dr. Judd, his father, and that the boy is now in Mexico.

He said he believed Mrs. Judd was sane, and that her mental average is about normal for her age.

6 LEVEE BREAKS IMPERIL 3000

Charleston, Miss., Jan. 18 (UPI)—Trapped in their flood-swamp homes, 3000 persons today face death by drowning as the raging waters of the Mississippi river system surge from six major breaks in the levees.

Approximately 2000 persons have been taken from their homes by rescue crews that worked throughout the night.

Two walls of water rushed into the "T" basin from breaks in the Patterson bayou and Grassy Lake levees met near here with terrific force.

Refugees by hundreds are being brought here. This town is cut off from the world except by telephone and telegraph.

Appeal levees were sent again today in Washington asking for aid first and investigation later.

The lack of boats is making rescue work difficult.

Thousands of a submerge have been placed on the new government levees that protect the town. Boat and North Greenwood are now flooded. A rise of more than two feet is expected. The rivers are now all above flood stage at Glasgow.

GRAHAM MOVES FOR NEW TRIAL

Motion for a new trial in the case again James J. Graham of Newton by Mrs. Bronia Chmielewski and Henry Chmielewski of Brookline was filed today in District-Atty. Frederick O. Katzman, counsel for Graham.

In his motion, Katzman charged that the $25,019 verdict against Graham on the morning of Thanksgiving Day, 1928, Mrs. Chmielewski sued for a divorce of $20,000, while the father sued for $10,000.

Graham was the driver of an automobile in which Bernice and Jeanette Chmielewski, daughter of the plaintiff, were fatally injured in Quincy on the morning of Thanksgiving Day, 1928.

Graham was not a resident of the plaintiff's home at the time of the accident. It is the only city with a fixed payroll. You and I are meeting that payroll with our taxes. Why should Washington be troubled?

There are a few very few people in Washington who still remember how trouble feels. But, Washington, as a whole, doesn't. It isn't. Personally involved, sure. Saturday, during the heavy snow, he plowed on toward here, carrying one of the dogs. When

5 FLEAVES IN BOB'S FLIVVER

Mrs. Fowler McCormick, the former Pitt Stillman, ended her visit with her son, James A. (Bud) Stillman, and his wife, the former Lena Wilson, in their Brookline apartment today and started back to New York.

She left the Stillman apartment on Newell st., Brookline, in Bud's battered flivver, which she had driven to small boats and took the flivver off, a difficult task in the ponding area.

The Stillman was bound for the South Coast fishing grounds, but because lost in the heavy fog, Capt. W. W. Larson in his shipper.

JUST A PLAY GAME

That's what Congress is like. People working at an elaborate, exciting, play-game. Going through important gestures. Making complicated passes at each other. Calling themselves patriots and statesmen. But—somehow—it's a game. Every moment you expect them to run away and eat cookies.

As a matter of fact, they do all a great many cookies. Eating is one of the few real things that happen in Washington. They are well fed, well dressed, live in warm rooms. They talk about trouble, but they are not really troubled themselves.

That doesn't mean they're heartless. I'll wager there isn't a downright mean or callous person on Capitol Hill. They're regular people. Back home, they'd dig in and help.

Washington is not a troubled city. It is the least troubled city in America today. It is the only city with a fixed payroll. You and I are meeting that payroll with our taxes. Why should Washington be troubled?

There are a few very few people in Washington who still remember how trouble feels. But, Washington, as a whole, doesn't. It isn't. Personally involved, sure. Saturday, during the heavy snow, he plowed on toward here, carrying one of the dogs. When

Trapper Saves Life by Ruse When Caught by Wolf Pack

Herk Lake, Man, Jan. 18 (INS)—The jaws of death opened for W. R. Gard, north country trapper, but years of experience in the bush country came to his aid when he, by a ruse, kept a pack of wolves at bay until he staggered into this small trading post, 90 miles north of the Fox.

He set out with his three dogs in the morning and had covered more than 12 miles when he discovered he was without a gun. Friday he ran into the fierce blizzard country and he was forced to camp out in the rugged sub-Arctic zone.

That night he was bothered by a large pack of wolves that crept nearer and nearer and finally attacked one of his dogs. He awoke in time to drive the pack off with his shotgun.

DRY RAIDERS KILL FARMER

Dallas, Ga., Jan. 18 (AP)—Law Crow, 45-year-old farmer of the Newhope section, was shot and killed yesterday during the raiding of a still near his home by prohibition officers.

Jack McCoy, bailiff from Cartersville, and Gordon Rogers and John McQuinn, federal prohibition officers from Atlanta, comprising the raiding party, said they found a still and another man, Virgil Aiken, at the still site about 200 yards from his home.

Aiken was arrested at the scene, officers said, but the farmer took cover and escaped by a ruse, they said.

McCoy said he saw him, Rogers said the farmer was shot and fatally wounded during the struggle that followed. Crow had a gun, the officers said but it was not fired.

ALL OF BOSTON'S IMPORTANT MATRONS AND THEIR daughters turn out on Friday afternoons for the Symphony concert. Friday afternoon means Symphony—whether or not you are a music lover—it you are one of the inner circle. It is THE THING to do. All of those who can afford it have season tickets, while the rest of us wait around for a single seat which Mrs. Four Zeros finds she cannot use at the last moment.

Last Friday we were fortunate to have one of these belated invitations and dashed away from the Vincent Club tryouts to slip quietly into our seat before Mr. Koussevitzky saw us. Our professional eye caught a glimpse of Mrs. Harold Coolidge under a large spray of orchids waiting for the performance to end that she might dash away to her son's wedding in Washington. She is one of the real patrons of music, but can you imagine having enough concentration to listen to a symphony an hour or two before traveling 500 miles to see your son married. We hope the orchids kept their freshness—maybe they were Symphony orchids and there were wedding orchids later.

Black Predominates in Gowns

WITH HER MOTHER, MRS. GEORGE S. MONKS, THIS beautiful Olga to a bright red silk costume trimmed with black—VERY Oriental—was receiving congratulations of her recent engagement. Attractive Mrs. Roger Wolcott wore a smart brown ensemble and Eleanor Gibson was also in that autumn shade. Black predominated and very chic was Mrs. Charles Higginson in that sable blue. Mrs. Edwin Boardman had a ray feather in her hat and a little gray moth. Mrs. Arthur Blake drifted in and out. Conspicuously lovely was Mrs. Joseph Warren's white hair and becoming costume, and Mrs. Robert H. Stevenson wore green with a bonnet feather in her toque. We must admit that the new hats of this season make the older matrons very much sweeter and more attractive looking; a soft fluff of feather, a bow or velvet softens the contours.

At the Copley

AFTER A DINNER WITH THE family, we were off again to the Copley Theater to see the sprightly little Pilsa Leads do a Dulcy performance in "This Thing Called Love." She is an amazing little person, and very lively, off stage as well as on. During the intermission we went back stage to her dressing room—can you believe it our first time behind the scenes—and we got a real thrill out of it. If we were not those few pounds over, we might yet go in for the Drama. The leading lady was also sharing a dressing room with Miss Leeds, and very vibrantly attractive she was in her gay costume and great paint. We missed half of this act as we were so fascinated watching her make up.

Musical Affinity

THEY WERE DRAGGED off to a night club for COFFEE—our favorite and safe beverage—and so to dance and chat and try and find interesting little bits for you, my dear. We did too. Don't breathe it to a soul, Mrs. Lorna Linsley is keeping the tabbies from dying of ennui again. The most fascinating and interesting little lady on the Hill, we are told, has found a musical affinity in Dicky Ames, who has recently arrived from Paris to stay with his mother, Mrs. Oliver Ames of Commonwealth ave. Richard has never said "I wish so that you could hear it," but the ladies simply HAVE about him in spite of a few pounds extra. We have watched his career with interest and are not surprised that he and the bewitching Lorna have become fast friends.

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

With no more than a chair or a table for props, and some rapid fire changes in both character and costume, Cornelia Skinner, single handed, held an audience for two hours at the Wilbur last evening. There was simplicity in the program—a panorama of character sketches which moved from one to another with almost bewildering speed. And what a show! It tore pages from history; it became an intimate portrait of women of this age, and far distant ones; it rippled with humor and it touched you with tragedy. And it was just a "one-man" show.

Although she may not be listed as a veteran in this field of entertainment, Miss Skinner is sufficiently experienced to take any stage to take any audience in hand, play with it and finally send it home in a state of complete submission. In a vaudeville show, we call these tricks little "one-man" shows; in a dramatic show, they are called "character sketches."

While the grim tragedy of Henry's house-hold presentation was a opportunity for light hearted play, the presentations were made in high color, with costumes of striking originality. But as Miss Skinner so Katherine Parr there was little to raise the spirits of the queen consort. The Tower was constantly casting its dreadful shadow over the scene. But as Miss Skinner so Katherine Parr there was little to raise the spirits of the queen consort. The Tower was constantly casting its dreadful shadow over the scene.

The program has already been referred to as one of splendid simplicity; the view from the two levels of the stage offered in bringing to life the six unhappy queens of Henry VIII, playing such turns with only an interval for change in costume; it is more than likely that some of the audience of the stage faces of the same names. Boston Bill Spalding in Ranks With Symphony Best

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

Albert Spalding, made one of his comparatively rare Boston appearances at Symphony Hall yesterday before an audience that did not tax the capacity of the auditorium. Twice as many could comfortably have heard him, and, judging from the manner in which he played, should have heard him.

In a program that did not diminish Spalding's reputation as the great American violinist, "indicated that he will merit that title. Certainly he was making that need not have blushed at the performance of the leading foreign virtuosi. A warm yet noble and restrained presentation of the Brahms D minor sonata was a classic performance of a romantic violin solo, a composition which had, as every unaccompanied work must, have for its aim.

Charming as it was, a well-chosen list of shorter compositions was especially fitting. The program was beautiful throughout the concert. His interpretation varied from the serious, except for the last, toward the end of the program. The audience realized its good fortune, and it applauded very warmly.

PROGRESS DOMINATING KEYNOTE TODAY

By B. C. FORBES

PROGRESS was the dominating keynote last week.

Most encouraging of all was the interest shown by the public in the new models exhibited at the New York Automobile Show. Not only did the attendance greatly exceed the most optimistic expectations, but the volume of sales actually effected was beyond all anticipations. A remarkably large number of visitors recorded their desire to trade in their present cars for new ones; this list of prospects will immediately receive attention from salesmen.

The most significant feature was the public's astonishment at the values offered. Almost every manufacturer has achieved definite improvements in performance and appearance without raising prices. Since America's total stock of cars has been wearing out on a scale far beyond the replenishing done during the last two years, the pent-up demand naturally is far above normal.

On the whole, the initiative, courage, aggressiveness exercised by our motor industry proves to be a satisfactory reward. This industry has contributed more to any other to stimulating general business recovery.

Congress Speeding Recovery

Events at Washington point to a definite encouragement. Much is expected of the $2,000,000,000 reconstruction finance corporation. It is now confidently expected that the organization will receive the presidential signature this week and that it will immediately begin functioning under conspicuously able management. Congress has demonstrated in other ways that it is anxious to speed up legislation calculated to improve sentiment and business. For once partisan politics are being subordinated to patriotic objectives.

Rail Problem Near Solution

The current week is counted upon to bring an amicable solution of the railway wage problem. Signing of a new agreement would in Wall Street's opinion have a point effect upon railway securities.

Retail trade reports are mixed. Industrial activity continues disappointing. Such indices as railway car loadings, bank and electric power consumption, employment figures, do not afford convincing proof that a universal upward trend has yet set in. Bank and other failures are still unpleasantly numerous.

Of commodity prices, the best that can be said is that they hold their own. This, however, is very much more gratifying than had the downward tendency continued unchecked.

Stocks Jump 5 Per Cent

The financial world enjoyed a good week. Stocks advanced an average of five points, bringing them almost 20 per cent above their Jan. 5 minimum. Both domestic and foreign bonds also showed firmness.

A lowering of bill-hilling rates was interpreted as foreshadowing easy-money steps by the Federal Reserve. The market is talking a lot about "inflation." That was the word coined by French anti-Americans to describe our government's constructive proposals. Unfortunately it has been too widely accepted and repeated to permit us here. What this country is suffering from is a moderate deflation. We are in no immediate danger of running into under "inflation."

So far nothing is within sight which could not be more accurately described as anti-inflation measures.

Perhaps most important, there are slightly more signs that those in high places are getting over their nervousness. Let improvement persist for another week or two, and the whole complexion of affairs in this country would doubtless undergo a notable change for the better. It is high time such an attitude developed.

STATIST

That a good part of the financial community is leaning toward the bear side. Without belittling their arguments, it does seem as though almost too much bear propaganda accompanied the selling of last Saturday. As a result, conservative longs have added to holdings in a moderate way. In case the setback exceeds normal proportions, they have stops which will automatically take them out of the market.

The Situation

Lack of tangible developments has stirred many traders to impatience. They, accustomed to declining prices, naturally wish for some concrete evidence of recovery. They are on the bull side. Thus the use of the word "situation" is not in the least a word of truth. They should consider the year situation for its fundamentals. The credit panic has been averted.
